

BIG FORGER ENDS LIFE ABOARD TRAIN

By Associated Press.
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 20.—Warehouse receipts for $55,000, purporting to have been issued by the government to R. E. Wathen & Company, Louisville distillers, were produced here today by a representative of a Chicago bank and branded by Mr.
Wathen as forgeries.

In a statement today Mr. Wathen indicated that the alleged forgeries may total more than $100,000.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Chas. Ledowsky president of the Fox River Distilling Company of Chicago, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the alleged forged warehouse receipts of R. E. Wathen & Company, of Louisville, committed suicide by shooting on a railroad train entering Chicago today.

Ledowsky was on a Michigan Central train from Syracuse, N. Y. He telegraphed ahead to an undertaker, requesting him to meet the train and take care of his body, as he intended to kill himself.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the Ledowsky company last Monday, scheduling assets of $20,000 against liabilities of $250,000 or $300,000.

Attorney Sidney Stein, representing Ledowsky creditors, stated that Ledowsky had confessed to him that he had forged warehouse receipts for whiskey valued at $250,000 or $300,- 000 and disposed of them through banks which he victimized.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE WORLD'S GREATEST WAR

Petrograd, Jan. 20.—The German army in front of Warsaw is using some new offensive machinery in its trench warfare with excellent results.
Among these new weapons are some very powerful land mines, which are set at night by sappers and exploded later by electricity. So-called "torpedoes" and improved hand grenades are also used.

The torpedoes are really bombs of formidable size, which explode on contact and spread death-dealing fragments of jagged iron, at the same time poisoning the air for twenty yards around with a deadly gas. These are hurled silently from a sort of ballista or catapult, which has a useful range of about 150 feet.

The hand grenades resemble in appearance a large sky rocket. A tin canister with a pointed head is fixed on a stick or handle about two feet long. The canister is filled with bullets and an explosive charge fired by contact on the pointed head. The grenade is thrown by hand, the stick serving both as a handle and as a tail which insures the pointed head striking first and exploding the contents. They are used in infantry charges during the few moments when the rifles cease firing and the bayonets are not yet within striking distance.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The Touring club of France has issued notice that its certification shall be withdrawn from every hotel that does not agree in writing never again to employ German or Austrian help.

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 19.—A party of Americans who scaled the Jungfrau recently brought back the news that from the top of that peak they had distinctly heard the sound of artillery fire from the Alsatian border, about 150 miles away.

ZANESVILLE PAPER SUSPENDS PUBLICATION

Zanesville, Ohio, Jan. 20.—At a meeting of the directors of the Zaneville Daily Courier, an evening newspaper, tonight, they decided to suspend publication Thursday night.
The paper is 69 years old and General
R. B. Brown, Republican candidate for governor in 1912, was editor for 40 years. He retired two years ago to become secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

COLE MAY LAND JOB

By Associated Press.
Columbus, O., Jan. 20.—Administration leaders today declared they expected Daniel B. Torpy, of Marietta, Ohio's directing commissioner for the Panama-Pacific Exposition, to resign soon and that Ralph D. Cole, of Findlay, former congressman and candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, would be appointed in his place. The salary is $6000.
The cause of Mr. Torpy's probable resignation is said by the administration leaders to have no connection with charges made against him in a Senate resolution, providing for an investigation of his expense accounts.
Governor Willis would prefer a commissioner in full sympathy with his administration. It is said.

ANOTHER U. S. BOAT HALTED

Washington, Jan. 20.—The State Department has requested of the British Embassy information why the American steamer Greenbrier, from New York to Bremen with cotton under certificate of the British consul at New York was stopped by British cruiser, sent under British flag to a British port and detained two days before being allowed to complete her voyage to Bremen.

The detention of the Greenbrier was brought to the attention of the State Department by telegrams from Captain Farley, her commander, now at Bremen.
Farley states that at a point on the North Atlantic the Greenbrier was overhauled, on December 30, by a British cruiser. Then the cruiser placed aboard the Greenbrier some additional British officers, who hoisted the British flag, and a prize crew who navigated the ship so that, according to Captain Farley, she was damaged before she was brought into Kirkwall.

WERTZ NAMED

Washington, Jan. 20.—President Wilson today nominated Edwin S.
Wertz, of Wooster, O., to be United State attorney for the Northern District of Ohio.

BRYAN ADMITS MEXICAN SITUATION BADLY MIXED

By Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Secretary Bryan said today the State Department had been without information for two days as to what had been happening in Mexico City. He described the situation as "somewhat mixed."

The flight of General Gutierrez from Mexico City has necessitated a quick change in the military plans of the convention forces commanded by General Villa.

The expected attack on Tampico, it is now believed, will be delayed. A general withdrawal of Villa's garrisons from southern Mexico is believed to be in prospect.

Enrique C. Llorente, Washington representative of Villa, denied there was any intention of setting up a new republic in the north.

Advices to the State Department from Tampico today said that the petroleum companies had ceased developing new projects, in accordance with the terms of the Carranza decree.

Many Americans are out of employment.

NO TRACE OF A "WINGED" ZEPPELIN

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 20.—There has been no news so far today to confirm the report current last night that a Zeppelin has been brought down on the English coast; on the contrary it now appears as though all the German raiders have returned whence they came.

King George had left Sandringham only a few hours before the raiders visit.

Most of the damage appears to have been inflicted on private houses and shops.

MAYOR GETS PEN SENTENCE

By Associated Press.

Columbus, O., Jan. 20.—H. E. Fier-ell, mayor of Groveport, O., was given an indeterminate sentence in the penitentiary here today by Judge Rodgers of the Common Pleas court, for forgery.

Fierell had been employed by a railroad and an express company as agent, and was convicted of falsely securing money from them.

SAYS UNREST DECREASING

By Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 20.—Jacob F.
Schiff, banker, director of many industrial corporations and representative in this country of the Baron de Hirsch foundation, testified as a witness before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission here today that he "would rather think" industrial unrest was decreasing in this country, and that he did not believe governmental representation on the boards governing great philanthropic foundations was advisable.

SAYS MEXICO'S ONLY HOPE IS STARS AND STRIPES

San Antonio, Jan. 20.—Mexico must be brought under the flag of the United States before it can "come into its own," according to Warren G. Harding, senator-elect from Ohio, who spoke at a dinner given by the commercial organizations of San Antonio. While Mr. Harding, who is to Sayre.

succeed Senator Burton criticised President Wilson's Mexican policy, he paid tribute to him as a citizen.

"Wilson is a great, good and patriotic president," he said. "I shall do everything in my power to help him in a peace policy when I take my seat in the senate. I don't know whether the administration's Mexican policy is his or Secretary Bryan's, but I want to say that the United States must never seek territorial aggrandizement by force of arms. Certainly we don't want to use our arms to wrest a land from a weaker neighbor.

"But there is a destiny in the affairs of nations. That was demonstrated at your Alamo and again in the civil war. The magnificent resources of Mexico never will be given to mankind and that country never will come into its own until it is brought under the civilizing influences of the American flag. How and when that condition will be brought about is not for me to say at this time, but it is coming."

BUSINESS BASIS NEVER BETTER

New York, Jan. 20.—E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation and head of the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment, asserted in a speech at the Merchants' Association today that the pecuniary advantages to this country resulting from the war are now equal to the disadvantages, so far as he could judge.

"The business men of this country are at the present time on a better basis than ever before," he continued.

HYMN FOR DARING MEN OF THE AIR

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 20.—A Hym for Airmen has appeared in the London press, which Sir Hubert Parry has set to music. The verses, signed by the initials M. C. D. H., are as follows: Lord, guard and guide the men who fly,

Through the great spaces of the sky,
Be with them traversing the air
In darkening storm or sunshine fair.

Thou who didst keep with tender might

The balanced birds in all their flight, Thou of the tempered winds be near,
That, having Thee, they know no fear.

Control their minds, with instinct fit
What time, adventuring, they quit
The firm security of land;
Grant steadfast eye and skillful hand,

Aloft in solitudes of space
Uphold them with thy saving grace.
O God, protect the men who fly
Through the ways beneath the sky.

22 DEPUTIES ARE ARRESTED

By Associated Press.

Roosevelt, N. J., Jan. 20.—Mayor Joseph A. Hermann announced today that warrants had been issued for the arrest of 22 deputy sheriffs involved in shooting yesterday of 19 striking laborers at the Liebig plant of the American Agricultural Chemical Co.
They would be charged with manslaughter, he said.

The men would be taken into custody at once, the mayor added, and would be arraigned this afternoon.

The mayor declared he had had 150 of the strikers searched for arms directly after the shooting and that "not a single weapon was found on any one of them."

STRUGGLE FAVORS THE INVADERS

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 20.—In Alsace, where the allies were making progress until checked recently by the arrival of German reinforcements, they now apparently are on the defensive.

The official statement from Berlin today says that the Germans have captured the town of Arisztein, north of Sennheim.

A further advance in the Argonne, also, is reported, but this is disputed in the French statement.

SYDNEY NOW THE CAPITAL

By Associated Press.

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 20.—
The seat of the commonwealth's government has been transferred temporarily from Melbourne to Sydney.
No reason for this action is given.

THE REASON

Washington, Jan. 20.—John L.
Cutright, American vice consul at Nottingham, England, was recalled, according to a statement today by Secretary Bryan, because a letter written by Mr. Cutright and published in an Omaha paper "contained expression of opinion in regard to the war."

HOST OF BILLS BEFORE SOLONS

More Than Ninety Introduced In the House.

SENATORS ALSO GET BUSY

Measures to Amend Civil Service, Taxation and Nonpartisan Judiciary Acts Dropped Into the Hopper—Labor Legislation and Amendment to License Act Sought in Several Other Bills Launched.

Columbus, Jan. 20.—The house of representatives plunged into business with the completion of its standing committee organization, adopting rules of procedure and receiving as the first batch of work for its committees ninety-six bills, a record number for a single day.

By rule, priority of number had to be given to the initiated bill to permit liability insurance companies to compete with the state under the workmen's compensation law, but by unanimous consent Representative White got in as H. B. No. 2 the bill backed by the G. A. R., forbidding display in public of the red or black flag.

An edition of the administration's tax decentralization bill, offered by Parrett of Fayette, proposes larger measure of state control over tax assessments and less decentralizing than the edition presented in the senate by Senator Garver. The Parrett bill gives the county auditor the right to ask the state tax commission to remove elected tax assessors, one for each municipal ward and township precinct. If an assessor fails to obey the auditor's instructions or is incompetent. If the state tax commission removes the elected assessor the auditor fills the vacancy by appointment.

Taxation bills were put in to increase the counties' share of collateral inheritance taxes to 20 per cent, the municipality or township to get 40 per cent and the state 40 per cent; to exempt $50 of personal property; to exempt $500 of household furniture and to divert the automobile tax from the state highway department to the county commissioners for road building.

No bill to decentralize the license system was introduced, but one was put in by Mr. Graham of Licking which not only retains the present state liquor license commission, but puts the wet and dry question squarely into politics by providing for two county license commissioners of opposite politics to be named by the state board on recommendation of the Republican and Democratic county executive committees.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—Finley P. Mount, Indianapolis attorney, was appointed receiver for the M. Rumley company, a $30,000,000 agricultural implement manufacturing concern. The action was taken by Federal Judge Anderson.

The various interests in the company have expressed great confidence in the ability of President Funk, who went to the company after it had become involved in its present difficulty through alleged mismanagement.

Two committees have been appointed in New York, one representing the associated banks, which took $6,800,000 of the company's former notes at 47 cents on the dollar, and the other representing the holders of $10,000,000 two year notes issued by the company.

Police Rush From Rome to the Earthquake Zone.

Rome, Jan. 20.—Police were rushed from Rome to the earthquake area because of the activity of white slave traffickers in the encampments of refugees. Some arrests have been made and the authorities are confident that a stop has been put to the practice.

New shocks were felt, centering in Calabria, which had hitherto escaped. Cosenza, the capital of the province, was badly shaken, and thousands of persons fled from their homes to the open, but so far as is known no one was hurt. Luzzi, near Sosenza, suffered more, a number of houses being shaken down. The same was the case at San Benedetto, Ullano, Montalto, Uffugo, San Pietro, Valano and Nappi.

It is snowing all through the earthquake region. The only persons saved from the ruins at Avezzano during the day was a baby.

The task of relieving the survivors is intensified because thousands of them refuse to return to their homes and prefer to take chances of securing shelter and food elsewhere, fearing recurrence of last week's horror. Adequate arrangements have been made to take care of all refugees, but there are still a great many in the mountain hamlets who can not be reached for several days and possibly not at all.

Late reports show that great damage was done in Orteccago, victims there numbering about 2,000. The village of Almort, near Avezzano, was razed, according to reports from soldiers who reported there, and many were killed. Pescara, San Benedetto, Gioi-di-Marsi and other towns suffered heavily in both property and lives. Paterno, a mountain town with a population of 2,000, has 1,800 dead and not a house remains standing there. Pesca is a heap of ruins, under which about 4,000 bodies are believed to be buried.

GARZA TO STEP OUT

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 20.—General Villa will not enter Mexico City until "the convention" settles upon a man for provisional president to succeed Gutierrez, to serve out the rest of unexpired term of Porfirio Diaz, according to Ernesto Fernandez y Arteaga, "convention" consul in El Paso. The consul asserts positively that "the armies of the north and south," meaning Villa and Zapata, "are in thorough accord." He declares that the selection of General Garza as temporary president was only to meet the exigencies of the situation made necessary by the flight of Gutierrez, and that the convention will select another man shortly. Consul Arteaga declared that all is quiet in Mexico City and that President Garza has sufficient troops to maintain order.

PRESIDENT CAN'T STOP HIGH PRICES

Washington, Jan. 20.—President Wilson held that he has no authority to place an embargo on exportation of foodstuffs to prevent them from reaching prohibitive prices. Such authority, he stated to his callers, would have to be conferred through legislative action. Whether a measure of this nature would be unconstitutional he was not prepared to say, inasmuch as he had not given the subject sufficient study. He indicated, however, that investigation of the department of justice of soaring grain prices is close to his heart. He told callers that he has asked thorough probing into any illegal combinations to control prices.

Don't Jump To Conclusions

Governor Willis' declaration of intention to make haste slowly in the matter of recommending, in detail, legislative enactment or stamping with approval some of the proposals already made to him, will do far more to establish the confidence of the people of the state in his ability as an executive, than will a continuous public demonstration of his remarkable ability to recall old acquaintances and incidents.

The new governor possesses to a degree, perhaps never before equaled by any other occupant of that office the gift of remembering names and individuals and being able to correctly associate names, faces and incidents.

That goes a long way towards making a man in public life popular. It will smooth down for every man in public life who possesses it, a multitude of rough places which an aggressive official's conduct is certain to make for him. If combined with the necessary amount of initiative and force, that splendid quality makes the public servant who possesses it rich in the multitude of honors which it will bring him.

But standing alone, the possession of the above priceless gift will not carry any public man to distinction, and if relied upon too much turns from pure gold to wretched dross.

Judging from his official conduct thus far the people have no reason to conclude that the new governor intends to lean wholly upon the jolly good fellow cane.

It would be cause for regret if he should make that mistake—cause for regret both on his own account and on account of the state.

What a multitude of vigorous action the possession of such a buoyant, friendly personality would enable an executive to carry through and still maintain his popularity.

It is yet much too soon to indulge in extravagant praise of the new governor simply because he is good natured and knows a great many people and can call them by name. It is also too soon to jump to the conclusion that because he possesses the ability to call nearly every visitor by name he is lacking in other qualities.

He has demonstrated that he possesses, to a very remarkable extent, one quality which makes a public man popular. Subsequent conduct must furnish the proof of whether he possesses or lacks the other qualifications.

While time is preparing that proof it is well for both enthusiasts and "grumps" to wait and refuse to indulge in either fulsome praise or knocks.

Those who express their opinion at this early stage may have cause to regret it later on.

Don't jump to conclusions.

Winter Of Our Discontent

This is the time of year—this is the season, the annual recurrence of the winter of our discontent made possible almost wholly by the refusal of the city council to provide ways and means for people to get to and from the "union" depot without being compelled to wade through a sea of mud.

This is the time of year, and it has been coming needlessly now for several years, when every citizen who is compelled to leave the city or return to the city "cusses" the council and every stranger "cusses" the whole town.

The citizen corrals the objects of his wrath in a narrow circle because he knows who is responsible, while the stranger visits his wrath on the whole community, so as to be sure to include those responsible for the existence of the outrage.

Some strangers arriving in the city after dark are so enraged when they land in mud more than shoe top deep and are so sweeping in their emphatic denunciation of those who permit such a condition to exist and so anxious are they to include the guilty parties, that all humanity everywhere "gets theirs" regardless.

Now, of course, only among home folks it doesn't make so much difference. Council members almost anywhere and especially in Washington expect to be knocked by the home folks. They are not to be blamed for refusing to become peeved to such an extent that they will get a move on themselves simply because home folks complain.

One would think though that they would want to stand well with strangers. But even granting they didn't care for that—that they were fully convinced that nobody liked a councilman in his official capacity, one would be justified in believing that even a councilman would be willing to act in order to save his innocent friends and neighbors from being abused and classed as fit only to live in the dark ages by every stranger who comes to town—and twice too from every stranger. Once when he comes and once when he goes.

Seriously, why doesn't council fix up that sea of mud at the depot?

Is there any good reason why it should not be done away with or bridged at least

Poetry For Today

LIBERTY FOR ALL.

They tell me, Liberty, that in thy name
I may not plead for all the human race,
That some are born to bondage and in disgrace—
So to a heritage of woe and shame—
And some to power supreme, and glorious fame:
With my whole soul I spurn the doctrine base
And, as an equal brotherhood, embrace
All people, and for all fair freedom claim!

Know this, O man! whate'er thy earthly fate—
God never made a tyrant nor a slave;
Woe, then, to those who dare to de-secrate
His glorious image—for to all He gave Eternal rights which none may violate;
And by a mighty hand the oppressed
He yet shall save!

—William Lloyd Garrison.

Pins.

It seemed as if it would take a whole paper of pins to mend the torn dress. The wearer appealed to her car neighbor.

"Have you any pins?" she asked.

The woman had none, but passed the query on, and in a little while every passenger was feeling along concealed edges and turning back lapels. In all, sixteen pins were produced. Fourteen were contributed by men.

"We never need them as much as the women, but somehow we carry them and the women don't," said one of the male passengers.—New York Post.

Anything but This.

Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
Why don't you can that song?
Really, Mary, no canary
Ever sang so loud and long.
Can it, Mary, gentle fairy,
And learn how to beat a gong.

—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Table Manners.

Some folks don't believe flints were once used as table knives because they can't see how the stone age man ever got one of them in his mouth.—Washington Post.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Ointments For Chilblains.

Try either the following ointments for chilblains. The first is by Dr. Hammerschlag, the second by Dr. Kaposi, both famous European physicians.

First.—Subacetate of lead, five grams; vaseline and lanolin, twenty-five grams of each.

Second.—Camphor, one gram; balsam of Peru, one and a half grams; white wax, forty grams, and flaxseed oil, eighty grams.

NATIONAL CAPITOL STEPS.

Those at the East Entrance Worn Out and Will Be Replaced.

Weathered and worn by more than eighty years of service, the wide stone steps leading to the east entrance of the capitol at Washington are to be replaced. The wear on the steps, caused by hundreds of thousands of persons climbing them, has been so great that they have become not only unsightly, but also dangerous in their present chipped and battered condition.

It is upon this time honored flight of steps that the president takes the oath of office every four years. When they were set in place in 1830 the senate and house wings had not yet been erected and the old wooden dome was still a part of the structure. For beginning the present improvement congress appropriated $50,000, but it is expected that at least $75,000 additional will be necessary to complete it.

It is interesting to note that when the District of Columbia was originally laid out it was the belief that the ultimate growth would be to the southeast. It was because of this that the main entrance of the capitol was made to face the east. Contrary to plans, however, the growth took an opposite direction and years ago necessitated the construction of the west entrance to the capitol, which since that time has been the one chiefly used.—Popular Mechanics.

The Lance in Warfare.

The German authorities obviously believe in the lance. The urban regiments are carrying it, and their battle equipment is certainly formidable, for in addition to the lance they have a carbine and a saber, which is slung on the saddle. The trend of military opinion is to regard cavalry merely as mounted infantry.

WARNING IS ISSUED BY CITY BOARD OF HEALTH

No More Peddling of Decaying Fruits and Vegetables Will be Tolerated— Punishment to be Meted Out in Accordance With Ordinance Covering Offense.

The City Board of Health is determined to protect the health of local citizens as far as possible, and a crusade against unwholesome fruit and vegetables usually carted about the city, has been launched, and violators of the law covering the offense are to be punished.

The warning issued by the Board of Health is given in full as follows: "Complaints have reached this department in reference to the peddling of unsound fruits, vegetables, etc., about the city. This stuff is huckstered from wagons and carts at reduced prices and as rule to people who feel they are not able to pay the price for a better and more wholesome class of goods.

"The sale or offering for sale of unsound, unripe fruits, vegetables, etc., is a violation of the health laws and punishable by a heavy fine. Getting by with business of this kind in the past does not justify a repetition of the offense. Also the fact that people buy does not vindicate the huckster or the person who furnishes the huckster; both are guilty.

"An end will be put to the peddling of a mess of rotten, unsanitary, unwholesome fruits, vegetables, etc., around the city. We have provided a dump ground for garbage of this kind.

J. W. BYRON,
Health Officer."

NOTED WORKER HERE TONIGHT

Mr. Gill Will Speak at Grace Church Where Revival Now Is in Full Progress—First Decisions Made Last Night—Pastor States Too Much Drunkenness Apparent in City.

Tonight Mr. Bert Gill, widely known personal worker and enthusiastic evangelistic speaker, of Columbus, will make his first appearance at Grace church, and he is expected to be greeted by a very large audience, as his ability as a speaker and his magnitude as a personal worker are well known.

A great many persons who are not regular attendants at any church are expected tonight and also tomorrow night, as the name of Bert Gill is well known to a large number of Washington citizens, and not always as favorably as it has been during the past two years, or since the Sunday meetings in Columbus, when Mr. Gill gave up the life he had been leading and started anew.

Tuesday night a large crowd was in attendance, and the deepest interest manifested during the series of meetings, was apparent, and the first decisions during the revival were made. More are expected each night.

Rev. John Dalbey had charge of the preliminary services, and tonight Mrs. D. H. Rowe will be in charge of the opening services.

In his sermon Tuesday night, Rev. Ross made a strong appeal to the membership for a greater interest as personal workers, and made it plain

BELIEVE MILL WAS DESTROYED BY ROBBERS

The belief exists in New Holland that the Van Riper mill, better known as the New Holland mill, which was completely destroyed by fire a few nights ago, was first robbed and then set on fire by the person or persons who robbed the mill.

A short time previous to the fire the mill was entered and two or three barrels of flour removed.

On the evening previous to the fire the mill contained some 15 barrels of flour, and in the ruins of the mill, which burned rapidly, no trace of the flour was found, giving rise to the belief that the mill was first robbed and the fire then kindled to cover up the crime.

The owner of the mill will not rebuild, as he suffered a heavy loss when the structure went up in smoke. Efforts will be made to ferret out the burglar and place a double charge against him.

INSTITUTE PROVES THE USUAL SUCCESS

The annual Farmers' Institute, of New Holland, came to a close Tuesday night with an entertainment given by the College Girls' Quartet, and the various meetings of the institute were crowned with success, deep interest marking each session, with the result that great good resulted to all who attended.

State Speakers John Beggs, C. A. Gearhart and Luella Barr McKee were always interesting, and went into each subject thoroughly and succeeded in arousing considerable discussion among those present, giving vim to the meetings.

The officers of the institute, who carried out the two days' meetings so successfully were: President, Douglas Binns; vice president, Joseph Dick; secretary, B. A. Timmons, and treasurer, Chas. M. Clifton. The executive committee consisted of Geo. Kirk, Clarence Skinner, Glen Grimes, Geo. Speakman, Harry Briggs, Carl Timmons, Geo. Smidley and C. B. Sessler.

A number of very profitable round table topics were discussed at length during the two days' session, and many original views were expressed. The progressive farmers took an active part in virtually every feature of the institute.

SPITTER STANDS UPON HIS RIGHTS

(An Imaginary Conversation):

"Sir, as I was riding in the cars to your city, I read in every coach, 'Spitting Prohibited by the Laws of this State and by Order of the Board of Health.' And then the notice went on to specify a cash penalty or jail imprisonment if the warning was disregarded. Sir—I'm righteously indignant! Shall my personal liberty be thus abridged? I protest emphatically and vigorously against any such curtailment of the privilege of a free-born American citizen! I protest against having any of the rights guaranteed to me by the constitution of the United States thus ruthlessly and autocratically taken away! Is not spitting a God-appointed necessity? Are we not living in a Democracy and under Home Rule? What fanaticism and puritanism is this which prohibits my spitting whenever, wherever, and however I please! I'm a native of 'the Land of the Free and Home of the Brave,' and no man shall presume to rob me of my birthright—my inherited prerogative! No, sir—the officers of the law can walk over my dead body first!"

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES HAS ASSUMED NEW TITLE

A special meeting of the members of the executive board of the Associated Charities organization instituted recently in this city, was held Tuesday evening in the offices of Dr. R. M. Hughey and as a result the original name of "Associated Charities" applied at the inception of the league was changed to "The Welfare Association of Washington C. H."

The reason for the change is to avoid the entering into the work of certain objectionable questions which the former name might invite. Little other business was transacted.

It was stated by officers of the Association Wednesday that the work is progressing nicely and that with funds on hand, it will be possible to have a permanent visiting nurse here within a week or ten days. The nurse has not been selected but will probably come from Cincinnati.

The success of the work, it was intimated, will depend upon the assistance of the public. Contributions are urged and will be received through the executive board.

Another meeting of the Association will be held soon.

In Social Circles

There was a large attendance of the Cecilians at the Tuesday afternoon meeting with Miss Edith Gardner.

A fine Bach program was presented after Mrs. Netta Ballard had given a very interesting review of current events from "The Musical Courier."

Mrs. Lizzie Barnes gave an excellent review of the Bach oratorio "The Passion of St. Matthews."

An exquisite number was a vocal solo, Bach-Gounod's "Ave Marie," by Mrs. W. W. Shoop, with violin obligato by Mr. Jas. Kneisley. Mrs. Eva D. Craig accompanied.

Mrs. Margaret Stitt gave brilliant interpretation to a Bach Gavotte Santa Sie in C Minor and Sainte Saens.

The program also included Miss Edith Gardner's artistic rendering of "My Heart Ever Faithful", Bach, Miss Light playing the accompaniment.

The Browning club held a session of marked interest Tuesday night, the annual election of officers taking place.

Mrs. P. J. Henness was elected to the office of president; Mrs. Martha Mark, 1st vice president; Miss Jean Howat, 2nd vice president; Mrs. May Rodgers, treasurer; Mrs. Carrie Fullerton, Mrs. Lola Gregg and Mrs. Ada Jones, executive committee.

Mrs. J. D. Post was elected to the associate membership list.

Mrs. G. W. Blakeley presided over the program in charge of the history department.

A beautiful piano duet on two pianos, was played by Mrs. Eldora Stinson and Miss Goldie Ryan.

A fascinating book review of "My Lady of the Chinese Court Yard" was presented by Miss Gertrude Channel.

"The City of Canton" was the subject of a splendid paper, spiced with humor, which provoked frequent smiles, by Mrs. Dolly Willis.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Ed Hunt and Mrs. George Worrell went to Columbus Wednesday morning to visit relatives and attend Julian Eitinge at the Hartman.

Rev. A. W. West was called to Tippecanoe City Tuesday night by the critical illness of his mother-in-law Mrs. T. P. Wells.

Mrs. Lulu H. Robinson and grandson, Robert Baird, are moving today from the residence of Mrs. Mary Dempsey, on N. Fayette street, to the home of Mr. L. L. Bowman on West Market street, where they have taken a suite of rooms.

Mr. Roy Tharp, of Cleveland, was the guest of his father, Mr. John Tharp and family the first of the week.

Mr. Wilbur Collins continues to improve at the Fayette hospital, after the operation of seven weeks ago. It will probably be a couple of weeks yet before he is able to leave the hospital and go to his home on the Anderson pike.

PREPARE FOR BIG BAUQUET

All members of the Fish and Game Protective Association now are looking forward to the coming of February 2nd, when the entire membership of 180 persons will enjoy a banquet and social evening together.

Arrangements for the event were completed Monday night, when the annual election of officers was held, and plans for the year discussed at some length.

In the election of officers Mr. C. A. Cave was re-elected president of the association; Mr. Bert Ellis was chosen vice president; Mr. Henry Sparks was elected secretary, and Mr. H. C. Ireland chosen treasurer. Some 40 members were present.

Six new members were added to the enrollment, Monday night, bringing the total membership up to about 180.

The banquet is an annual feature of the association, and a jolly affair. Members from all parts of the county will be in attendance, and it will exceed the banquet of last year by as large again attendance.

The association, in its 16 months of existence, has been of great benefit to the county in the way of offering protection to fish and game, and adding to the fish and game by distributing and caring for the same insofar as possible. Still greater things are planned by the association.

ZEPPELIN RAID STUNS ENGLAND

Bombs Dropped on Four Towns In Province of Norfolk.

SANDRINGHAM IS BOMBARDED

Invaders Cover a Large Section of Southeastern England, Killing Townpeople and Terrorizing the Populations of Several Cities—Germans Swoop Across North Sea and Do Deadly Work.

London, Jan. 20.—England is aghast at a raid last night by German Zeppelins, believed to have been three in number, aided by other air craft, which ranks in audacity with the recent naval attack on English coast towns.

The invaders covered a large section of southeastern England in their flights and dropped numerous bombs, killing townspeople, wrecking buildings and terrorizing the populations of several cities.

Bombs were dropped in Yarmouth,
King's Lynn, Sandringham, Cromer, Speringham and Beeston, and everywhere, except at Beeston, casualties and damage to property resulted.

Sandringham, which is a royal residence, and is frequently visited by King George and his family, was subjected to aerial bombardment by a hostile craft. It is believed this attack may have been ordered under the impression, gained possibly by the German secret service, that his majesty and advisers expected to hold a consultation at Sandringham.

Between five and seven bombs were dropped at King's Lynn by a Zeppelin and police say two houses were demolished and one house damaged in Bentick street. It is said that three people were killed in the town.

A hostile air craft passed over Yarmouth and dropped several bombs.
Considerable damage to property resulted and it is feared there was some loss of life. One man is reported to have had his head blown off. One bomb fell in Norfolk square, close to the sea front, and another on the south quay. A third struck the York Road drill hall, fragments of the casing of the shell crashing through the glass roof of the billiard room of the headquarters of the national reserve. A fourth missile fell near the Trinity depot.

Farther north, at Cromer, a watering place, twenty-one miles north of Norwich, an aeroplane also appeared and explosives were dropped by the driver.

had been staying at Sandringham with their family, only yesterday returned to London to resume their residence in Buckingham palace.

The towns of Yarmouth, Sandringham, King's Lynn and Cromer are all in the province of Norfolk, which abuts the North sea, about 150 miles northeast of London.

Yarmouth, known as Great Yarmouth, and Cromer are favorite water resorts, while Sandringham contains the country palace of the late King Edward. King's Lynn is a seaport and market town. It contains shipbuilding yards, iron foundries, machine shops and other industries.

It is not positively known whether the raiders were Zeppelins or aeroplanes, but Zeppelins were reported yesterday afternoon as passing over the North sea in a westerly direction, and there is an inclination to believe

FRENCH GAIN NEAR VERDUN

London, Jan. 20.—To the southwest of Verdun, near Ponta-Mousson, the French are reported to have approached a few hundred yards nearer the German frontier. Military men attach considerable importance to the operations in this region, for, they say, in conjunction with the continued French pressure on the German lines to the west of the fortress of Perthes, they will check, if successful, German operations against Verdun, around which they have had a half circle drawn since they invaded France.

The Russians are carrying out big operations between the East Prussian border and the lower Vistula. In this operation, as far as can be judged from the scant details furnished, the Russians are making a big sweep to the west and north, evidently in an endeavor to prevent Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's forces from forming a junction with the German troops in East Prussia.

UNUSUAL IS SITUATION ON CAPITOL HILL

Extra Session of Congress Now Believed Unavoidable.

SENATORS TO CAUCUS TONIGHT

Further Efforts to Be Made to Harmonize Differences Existing Among Democratic Members—Advocates of Rural Credits Legislation Insistent Upon Early Action—Remarkable Situation on Capitol Hill.

Washington, Jan. 20.—An extraordinary situation exists on Capitol hill.
With the influence of the president being exerted to bring about the passage of the ship purchase bill at this session, and with many of his party followers in the senate and house out of sympathy with the measure, the indications are that an extra session of congress is unavoidable.

The plan under discussion now is for a special session to be called almost immediately after the end of the present congress on March 4.
Democratic senators, who were to have held a caucus last night in a further effort to harmonize their differences on the ship purchase bill, postponed the meeting until tonight. This postponement was because Democratic senators served notice that additional amendments were to be offered by them. Republican senators, who are obstructing the passage of the ship purchase bill, are fully organized, and there is every evidence that the senate is on the eve of one of the hardest executive battles that have been fought in recent years.

To add to the confusion of the situation in the senate several of the Democratic members are insistent upon the enactment of rural credits legislation, while President Wilson insists it can wait till later. Democratic senators not only are predicting that an extra session of congress is now certain, but were contending that such a session would be desirable.

Republican opposition in the senate to the government ship purchase bill took on all evidences of an actual ill-buster, with Senator Burton of Ohio leading the attack. No progress was made on the measure.

GRAIN CARS JAMMED IN TRAIN YARDS

Atlantic Ports Have More Wheat Than They Can Find Ships For.

New York, Jan. 20.—There is so much grain in cars jammed in railroad yards at Baltimore that the Pennsylvania railroad has placed an embargo on the port. It also put a corn embargo on Philadelphia. New York now has more grain than it can find ships for, but all the railroads are still accepting shipments for this port. One railroad expert estimated that there are 7,000 carloads of grain in New York and Jersey City for which there are no ships in sight.

The New York Central, Erie, Lehigh Valley, West Shore, Lackawanna and Pennsylvania have all more grain in transit than they can handle easily under present conditions at the sea-coast.

The factors that have brought about the present congestion are several.
The export demand has been extremely heavy, in the first place. One guess has it that only 75,000,000 bushels of wheat remain in this country available for export and that after that Europe will have to live on our corn.

Covell's Little Joke

It Didn't Turn Out the Way
He Expected.

By WILLIAM NORRIS, JR.

Balmoral was a mining town, and all Balmoral, with the exception of Dan Betterley and his sister, thought Colonel Covell's joke a good one. The Bet-terleys were excepted because the joke was on Dan.

The joke had sprung from a careless remark made by Rob Henders when Julie Betterley had refused to marry Howard Wetton on the ground that she did not want to leave Ben alone to keep house in bachelor discomfort.

"Some one would do Wetton a personal favor by marrying off Ben," suggested Henders, and the rest of the crowd shouted with delight at the idea of the silent Benjamin marrying.

"But he wouldn't know how to ask a girl," suggested Colonel Covell. "Some one would have to pop the question for him. By John Rogers," he added, "I think I'll do it for him! I've a maiden aunt back east who's been crazy to get married for more years than I've lived.
Her name's Adora Dedrick, and she must be about sixty now."

"She's got a little money, and she may think that he's marrying her for that, but she'll take him. We'll carry along the game until we've proposed for him, and then we'll let Ben get the answer or else we'll bring the old lady on and let him fight it out with her."

"That would be great," declared Henders approvingly. "Let her walk right up to him and put her arms around his neck and say 'Darling!' I'll bet that will scare him into talking."

"I'll be one to help pay the old lady's traveling expenses on this here excusion," broke in Denver Bill. "What will it cost?"

"Say $400," suggested Covell as he took off his hat and threw in $20. In a few minutes more than the needed sum had been realized, and, calling for pens and paper, Covell wrote the first letter, while the rest of the crowd looked on.

Betterley was not disliked in Balmoral, but his tactful ways and his refusal to make one of the crowd that nightly thronged the hotel bar marked him a man apart from the rest. Hence the crowd was willing to pay for the pleasure of seeing his amazement when his undesirable bride elect should appear.

Unmindful of all postal regulations, the postmaster agreed to let Covell have the letters addressed to Dan Betterley should any come from the little
New England town where Miss Adora Dedrick lived. Presently it came, a heavy letter in which Miss Dedrick expressed a willingness to correspond with a man so well recommended by Cousin Covell.

"I guess she's forgotten you, colonel," suggested Henders when this line was reached, but Covell merely grinned appreciatively and continued to read.

There was little to laugh at in the letter. Indeed, more than one in the crowd wished there was some one back east who would write letters like that to him, but Covell's vivid description of Miss Dedrick's overripe charms and the thought of what Dan would say when she arrived kept the joke alive during the correspondence that followed. Finally when Miss Dedrick wrote that she was sending her picture and the accompanying photograph proved to be that of a comely girl scarcely out of her teens Covell rolled on the floor in his delight.

"Cousin Adora was that old before they knew how to take pictures," he insisted. "She must have begged this of a photographer. I think that it's time to spring the joke now. We'll send her the money to come on with and ask her to start at once. Dan will see this picture, and when Cousin Adora comes I reckon he'll be some surprised."

Covell laboriously indited a lengthy letter, in which he declared Dan's inability to wait longer for his bride and begging her to come west at once.

A few days later a telegram telephoned from the railroad town to camp announced her start, and when they had learned the sense of the message the plotters allowed it to be delivered, while at the same time Miss Adora's last letter and her picture, inclosed in the original letter, were placed back in the postoffice and delivered to Dan that evening.

Dan received them, but said not a word the next day, and the crowd was disappointed.

"Wait until he sees what he draws," reminded Covell. "He'll go some sly of sleep when Cousin Adora gets after him with all those letters. She'll never believe that he didn't write them."

The thought cheered the disappointed ones, and even when Dan went quietly to his claim on the morrow and did not even ask the postmaster about the letter they chuckled as they thought of the awakening that was in store for him.

Every man in the camp was on hand when the stage came over from Rux-ton three days later.

Far down the trail the driver waved his hat three times as a signal that the bride had arrived, and they were all lined up about the front of the hotel where they could watch Ben and his sister without being so near that he might suspect something.

There was a tense moment when the velled figure descended from the interior of the stage, but a murmur of disappointment followed when it was seen that a heavy automobile veil was impenetrable.

Dan came forward, and the arrival turned to him. He led her up to his sister, and the three climbed into the Betterley buckboard and were off to Dan's shack before the camp fairly realized that it was being robbed of its fun.

"It's going to be curious when she takes off that there veil," said Henders, with a sigh, "but it's darned mean that we can't declare in on the deal. I sort of feel that I've been cheated."

"Same here," chimed another voice, and, though Covell urged that there still would be plenty of fun, he was decidedly unpopular for the moment.

In an effort to change the humor of the crowd he invited them over to the Brindle Pup, and they were still having drinks at his expense when Dan Betterley strode in and drew Covell to one side.

"Look here," he said quietly, but with a ring of determination in his voice.
"Dora has been asking for 'Cousin Covell,' and I suppose that means you. If it does you are at the bottom of this trick. I want to know what it all means."

"It was a sort of joke," explained Covell, who did not appear to be greatly enjoying the "joke." "Some of the boys thought that you ought to be married, so's Julie could marry Howard Wetton, and I remembered that I had a Cousin Adora back east who's been wanting to be married for the last fifty years, so I thought I'd make the whole lot of you happy and—"

"And you did the writing," concluded Dan. "From what Dora says I gather that there were a number of letters I never saw. I want them."
From the saloon safe Covell extracted the package of letters and silently turned them over to Betterley.

"I suppose you know what the punishment is for illegal use of the mails?" he asked, raising his voice. "The first hint from any one that reaches my wife's ears to the effect that she was the victim of a rotten practical joke will bring a postal inspector here who will see that you get what's coming to you!"

"Your wife?" gasped Covell. "You don't mean to say that you're going to marry that mummy?"

"Doesn't the fact that you are still alive argue that?" asked Betterley.
"The joke appears to do on you, Covell.
I fell in love with her photograph just as Dora did with mine, and I was well content to make the match you so amiably planned."

"She looks like that photograph?"
asked Covell gaspingly.

"It doesn't half do her justice," declared Betterley loudly. "The Adora Dedrick that you have been corresponding with became Mrs. Henry Sprague some ten years ago. This Adora is her niece, her brother's child, named after her. She was the only Miss Adora Dedrick, and she received the letters. She wants to see her cousin, and if you dare hint anything when you come up I'll—"

"You won't have to," said Covell humbly. "I've acted like a bound puppy, Dan. You needn't be afraid.
I'm only too glad the joke's been switched."

"Same here," said Betterley, more contentedly. "You fellows come up tonight. There's going to be a double wedding, for now Julia can marry Wetton. You're a pretty good joker, colonel!"

"I ain't no joker," declared Covell, with more emphasis than grammar.
"I'm one of them pretty pink Cupids that they have on valentines—and I'm rather good at the job too."

Massage For Bruises.
Massage is useful in treating bruises, particularly the severe contusions due to external violence. The rubbing should be done with a stroking movement, using the fingers or the palm, and always directed from the center of the contusion. In this way great relief will often be obtained in a few minutes. The massaging should be done twice a day and should not be continued for more than fifteen minutes at a sitting. In massaging sprains the rubbing should be directed toward the joint, not away from it. In such conditions the time of the application may be lengthened to half an hour, and a greater amount of pressure exerted than in cases of simple contusion. The parts directly over the joint, however, should be handled gently, as otherwise more harm than good may be done.

Bowser's Two Weeks

He Went That Long Without a Row.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser sat in his office thinking. It had been two whole weeks since there was a row in his house.

This was unprecedented. Was he growing old and absent-minded?

Was he neglecting the things that should not be forgotten?

By neglecting to raise a row wasn't he holding out false hopes to Mrs. Bowser? Wouldn't she soon be taking advantage of his peaceful state of mind? Hadn't there been two or three indications of late that she wanted to take the bossing of things into her own hands?

Mrs. Bowser was no serf, but there were limits beyond which no wife should be allowed to go.

A husband shouldn't be a tyrant, but he should rule his own house and charge his wife with extravagance.

Perhaps a husband should talk things over with his wife, but he shouldn't pay much heed to what she says.

Mr. Bowser made up his mind that he had been remiss and that he must make up for it.

He had his dignity on when he entered the house at the usual hour.

His attitude during the dinner hour was eminently frozen and proper. He had intended to find fault with the dinner, but it was so good that he couldn't say a word. He was fishing for something, however, and by and by he found it. He noticed a stain on the carpet and exclaimed:

"So the whole house is going to ruin for the want of proper attention! No matter how much I buy, you manage to destroy it."

"What's the matter now?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she turned on him.

"The matter is that you hunted up the ink bottle and poured the contents on this carpet. Look at that spot over there. Nice sight to greet the eye of a husband, isn't it?"

"This carpet is three years old, Mr. Bowser, and that stain has been there for two years. You made it yourself by upsetting a bottle of hair dye, and though I have used everything I could think of, I have been unable to take it out."

"What! What! You talk that way to me!" he shouted as he sprang up. "Woman, I permit!"

"Sit down!" commanded Mrs. Bowser, as she pointed at him. "Now, then, I want to have a little talk with you. You are dissatisfied as to the way this house is run."

"Yes; I am dissatisfied," replied Mr. Bowser as he sat down in surprise. "Then why don't you leave it? There is no rope around you—no reason why you should stay here and feel yourself a martyr."

"You—you are talking to me?"

"I'm talking straight at you, sir! Every week or so you raise a row about your shirts, collars or socks. I want you to stop such conduct. If you don't I'll gather them all up and pitch them out the window!"

"This—this is Mrs. Bowser?" he gasped as he rubbed his eyes and stared at her.

"This is Mrs. Bowser, sir, wife of Mr. Bowser, the biggest crank in America! She has put up with your nagging just as long as she can. If there is any more of it you will hear something drop! There are a few little things that I want to speak about. You always find fault with the gas bill no matter whether it is more or less. You either quit that or we'll turn to tallow candles. I don't inhale the gas or give it to beggars!"

"Say," said Mr. Bowser as he looked around the room to see if he was in his own house—"say, I—"

"And the coal," she continued as she waved him to silence. "Coal is so much per ton. We burn about so much per month. I don't eat it or trade it off for caramels, and yet you raise a row every two or three weeks about the coal bill. If I hear another word from you this winter about coal I'll put out every fire and turn this house into a cold storage establishment!"

That was Mrs. Bowser sitting there before him—the same Mrs. Bowser whom he had bulldozed and browbeaten for years and years—and she was now talking to him in that fashion. It was the same woman sure enough, but he looked at her as one in a dream, and her words seemed to come from far away.

"I buy the meat and groceries," she continued, "and I buy as economically as I can. I save at least 15 per cent more than you could, and yet you are always finding fault. I am tired of it. You either cease to talk or I cease to buy. You are also constantly meddling with the kitchen help and thereby usurping my authority. If you think you can run the kitchen then stay home and do it. The best girl I have had for a year left me yesterday because you were always poking your nose in the kitchen."

"P-poke-poking my nose?" murmured Mr. Bowser as he grew white around the mouth.

"That's what I said. You thought yourself a philanthropist when you sneaked down and said it was too bad she had to work for a living, but she called you a baldheaded old meddler!"

"She—she called me that, did she? Why, the—the—"

"And here's another thing, Mr. Bowser. You come home and want to play cards to pass away the evenings. We sit down to play, and because I beat you three or four straight games you get mad and kick things about and wish you had spent the evening at the club. I don't know where your club is or what it is like, but any time you prefer it to my society don't hesitate on my account. As a matter of fact, you hardly know one card from another and should take lessons from me for two or three months. However, as I shall never play with you again it's a matter of indifference."

Mr. Bowser rose up and gasped. Then he sat down and choked. Mrs. Bowser could see his lips moving, but no sound came from them.

"And you talk about my extravagance in clothes," she said as she looked him up and down. "Yes, that is a pet hobby of yours, and yet you know you spend more for cocktails than I do for gloves, more for cigars than I do for shoes, more for worthless patent medicines than I do for dresses. There isn't a husband in the state earning $30 per week whose wife does not dress like a queen compared to me. You have got to stop throwing away money and turn it over to me to dress on!"

"Woman—w-o-m-a-n!" Mr. Bowser managed to gasp, but she pointed her finger and said:

"Once in a great while you open your heart and give me a dollar for pin money, but you expect it to last me for three months. I want to change right here and now. I want a weekly allowance, and a liberal one at that! You simply drink fewer cocktails and smoke fewer cigars and I'll take the money! It's a favorite theory of yours that no woman can be trusted with money, but if I can't make 75 cents go further than your dollar I'll be willing to mend my own shoes!"

Mr. Bowser got up to walk about, but his knees wobbled so that he had to sit down again.

"There's another thing, while we are talking matters over. Whenever you get mad at me you talk divorce, alimony and all that. If you want a divorce from me go and file your application, and I won't contest it. I'm young enough and good looking enough to find another husband in a year or two, and I'll take care he isn't a crank! As to alimony, I've helped you to make all you have, and I shall want half of it. If there's a separation one of us will have to leave this house, and it won't be me, Mr. Bowser! I think this is about all. I am now going up to my room, and should anybody call you will say that I am not at home. Should you wish to talk with me on any subject we have missed just come upstairs and give three raps on the door, but I think we have gone into matters pretty thoroughly."

She vanished upstairs, and then Mr. Bowser sat with his head in his hands and thought and pondered for the next half hour. He couldn't make it out, try as he would, and when Mrs. Bowser came downstairs at midnight she found him asleep on the lounge with a tear in the corner of either eye.

SHADOW PICTURES.

The Silhouette as the Origin of All Pictorial Art.

In the year 1750, when Etienne de Silhouette was minister of finance under Louis XV., a man whose name has not been preserved started in Paris an exhibition that he called Chinese shadows. This consisted in throwing upon a sheet the black outlines of men or objects and making these shadows take part in a play. It so happened that at this time Silhouette was unpopular. He had spent many years in England and had returned to his native country greatly impressed with English methods of public economy. Undertaking to apply these principles to French finances, he met with decided disapproval by the Parisians. But little thanks did he get except to have his efforts branded as parsimonious.

Some one recalled that M. de Silhouette had written a book, "A General Idea For the Government of the Chinese," in which he exploited his economical theories. The popularity of the Chinese shadows was responsible for the libel that Silhouette had issued the book as an advance notice for the show; hence the shadows were called silhouettes, and the name was naturally extended to portraits that were then coming into vogue, in which were presented only the outlines of faces and figures filled in with black.

Though the fashion and the name of the silhouette are of comparatively recent origin, the art itself is ancient. It was used by Etruscan potters eight centuries before Christ, and a classic legend, which has been illustrated by Benjamin West in a famous picture called "The Origin of Painting," claimed that all pictorial art originated in an attempt to paint the fleeting shadows of men and women as they fell upon a wall or a blank space.—Detroit Free Press.

DAY OF THE QUILL PEN.

When Writing Paper Was Poor and Envelopes Were Unknown.

The constant mending required by quill pens must have proved a severe trial in the days when no others were available, says the London Chronicle. Alexander I. of Russia thought it necessary to employ a man whose sole duty consisted in cutting pens. He was required to have a supply of not less than 100 quills always ready.

This number was by no means excessive, for Alexander would never use the same pen twice. Even the writing of a signature spoiled a pen, in his opinion, for subsequent use. The quill cutter, who received a salary of £340 a year, accompanied the czar on all his journeys, including campaigns against Napoleon.

Writing implements changed considerably for the better during Sir Walter Gilbey's long spell of life. "Though quill pens are still in use," he remarks in his "Recollections of Seventy Years," "I remember the time when one seldom saw any other kind. Steel pens in their early days were expensive and ill made, and few people used them. The paper we had seventy years ago may have been partly to blame. It had neither the substance nor the surface we take as a matter of course nowadays."

"I remember when envelopes came into use, and what a boon they were considered after the old system of closing letters with wafers or wax. Before envelopes were invented letters were always written with an eye to the position of the wafer or seal, a blank space being left to correspond with the space where this would be put on the outside, lest the written portion should be torn in opening."—New York Sun.
